

In India, the Institute of Banking Personnel Selection (IBPS) exams play a pivotal role in shaping the careers of graduates aspiring to enter the banking sector. These exams, conducted annually, serve as a gateway to employment in public sector banks, a sector known for its stability, growth opportunities, and social impact.

One of the primary reasons IBPS exams hold immense importance for graduates is the vast employment opportunities they offer. Public sector banks are the backbone of India's financial system, and successful candidates find themselves working in esteemed institutions like State Bank of India, Punjab National Bank, and Bank of Baroda. The exams, comprising preliminary and mains stages, assess candidates on their quantitative aptitude, reasoning ability, and English language proficiency, ensuring a comprehensive evaluation of their skills.

The exam pattern is as follows:

The IBPS PO exam pattern typically consists of THREE main stages: the Preliminary Examination Main Examination and the Personal Interview.

Preliminary Exam pattern:
